RDA Update

Just as we were getting comfortable, RDA is undergoing a restructure and redesign: 3R Project (http://www.rdatoolkit.org/3RProject). The RDAToolkit Beta Site (http://beta.rdatoolkit.org/RDA.Web/) is now active and looks very different to the current RDAToolkit. RDA uses new terminology, to align with the IFLA-Library Reference Model (LRM), which replaced the Functional Requirements family of models (FRBR, FRAD and FRSAD) in 2016. The RDA user interface is radically different, more modular and dynamic, with no instruction numbers. The instructions themselves have become less prescriptive in their application

This workshop will give an overview of:

- IFLA-Library Reference Model
- Changes to instructions
- How to understand and use the new RDA interface

This workshop, combining theory and hands-on activities, is suited to library staff who have some understanding of RDA.

Understanding Catalogue Records

What is the purpose of a catalogue record? Where do all the bits in a catalogue record come from? What is their purpose and what do they mean? How does my library system use the records? How can I ensure that the records are useful for my students and staff?

This workshop will cover: data elements in a record, subject headings, classification and call numbers, and authority records and is most suited to library staff who have responsibility for managing library cataloguing records and who would like to understand more about the nature of the data being imported.

Please bring your SCIS username & password, if you have them. Also, if you have online access to your library system's cataloguing module, this would be useful in this workshop.

Book Covering & Basic Repairs

Learn how to keep your books looking good for longer using a variety of covering materials. Using simple repair techniques, give old favourites a new lease on life, learn how to 'tip-in' missing pages, re-attach covers and repair tears using the correct materials.

This is a hands-on workshop using library-specific covering and mending materials.

Bring a paperback book, a hardback book and a book with a dust jacket to cover. Books for mending will be supplied. All materials supplied.
